

Bio Sofia Ritzén, professor of integrated product development, KTH

Sofia Ritzén is Professor in Integrated Product Development, School of Industrial Engineering and Management, KTH Royal Institute of Technology, Stockholm, Sweden. Sofia Ritzén has a long experience from research in collaboration with industry as well as with public organization. Her research focuses on the management of innovation in relation to sustainable development. Over the last years Circular Economy and the required transformations in organizations as well as in society has led her research efforts.