Intended learning outcomes

The aim of the course is to give deeper insights in topics of relevance for environmental strategic analysis.

Course main content

The course includes independent studies of literature of relevance for environmental strategic analysis. The literature is chosen by the responsible supervisor and the PhD student(s). The literature can consist of books or a number of scientific papers. Normally, the content should be at least 350 pages. A course-memo should be established by the PhD student(s) in collaboration with the responsible supervisor. In the course-memo, a literature list, planned seminars and examination form should be specified. The course-memo should be sent to, and be approved by, the contact person for the course before the course can be examined.

Language of instruction

Language of instruction is specified in the course offering information in the course and programme directory.

Eligibility

The course is primarily open for PhD students in environmental strategic analysis.

Literature

Decided for each course occasion.

Examination

Requirements for final grade

The literature is presented at a seminar or in an oral examination. A written summary of the literature should also be presented.
