Language of instruction

The language of instruction is specified in the course offering information in the course catalogue.

Intended learning outcomes

After completing the course, the students should be able to:

- explain the prerequisites for urban development today;
- describe contemporary trends in urban development planning;
- analyse the planning practice from a theoretical understanding of strategic planning, place marketing and urban design;
- formulate and propose comprehensive urban development strategies in concrete cases.

Course contents

The course deals with contemporary views on urban development and planning in practice and theory. Focus is directed towards theories about, as well as the practice of:

- strategic planning,
- place marketing, and
- urban design,

as comprehensive approaches in contemporary urban development and planning. Thereby, the aim with the course is to develop knowledge concerning the prerequisites that affect urban development and planning today; which ideals and trends that are dominating contemporary planning; different theoretical perspectives on strategic planning, place marketing and urban design, and how these approaches are put into practice.

Disposition

The course includes lectures, seminars and a project task. Through lectures the course main content is communicated from the perspective of both theory and practice. The seminars aim at deepen the understanding of what strategic planning, place marketing and urban design is or can be. In a project task the theoretical knowledge and the experience gained in the course are used by the students in the formulation of comprehensive strategies and the production of practice oriented documents/plans for urban development, e.g. vision and strategy documents, marketing plans, programs for urban design competitions.
