Education cycle

Second cycle

Main field of study

Specific prerequisites

AI2112 Economics.

Language of instruction

The language of instruction is specified in the course offering information in the course catalogue.

Intended learning outcomes

The course should allow participants to use the tools that enable them to evaluate the profitability of real estate investments. This will also allow them to model one of the most commonly used valuation methods for real estate assets – the discounted cash-flow model. This course is thus a prerequisite for Real Estate Valuation.

After the course, students should be able to:

- Explain the strengths and weaknesses of the various investment decision criteria
- Use capital budgeting techniques to analyze the profitability of real estate investment decisions
- Value different types of real estate cash flows
- Use MS-Excel to build real estate cash flow models that can be used for investment decision-making and valuation
- Work as part of a team of people with different backgrounds

Course contents

Formulation of investment problems. Capital budgeting techniques: Net Present value, Pay-back period, and Internal rate of return. Application of the techniques to different cash flows: annuities, sinking funds, and uneven cash flows. Taxes, depreciation as well as measures of risk and return. Nominal and real discount rates. Introduction to real estate cash flow models using MS-Excel.
