Main field of study

Computer Science and Engineering

Language of instruction

The language of instruction is specified in the course offering information in the course catalogue.

Intended learning outcomes

After passing the course, the students should be able to:

- apply basic research methodology within empirical science, engineering science and design science
- design research projects with consistent use of theory and method to be able to answer a specific question and/or create a design based on specific preconditions
- discuss the relation between theory, method and analysis
- critically assess the results and analysis a research project based on its attempt
- discuss possibilities and limitations of different data collection techniques, methods, analyses and theoretical perspectives
- discuss ethical and social aspects within research in media technology
- discuss media technology research in relation to equality and sustainable development.

Course contents

Theory of knowledge; theoretical perspectives, data collection methods, analysis in interactive media and communication technology as well as research-ethical aspects on these; different views on knowledge production and research, technical development and design. Equality, sustainability and particularly social sustainability.

Specific prerequisites

Examination

- INL1 - Homework, 2.5 credits, grading scale: P, F
- INL2 - Homework, 2.5 credits, grading scale: P, F
