Language of instruction

The language of instruction is specified in the course offering information in the course catalogue.

Intended learning outcomes

This course will give the participants basic knowledge about transport of goods based on three perspectives:

- Demand for transport of goods. What forces a continuously greater demand for these services?
- Offer and production of goods. What does the market look like that offers these services?
- The role of the state when it comes to the connection between transport of goods and the infrastructure.

Course contents

This course gives theoretical knowledge about the role and the importance that transport of goods has for the logistic system in a producing company. That means a description of the requirements of the transports that the company has, such as range, structure, managed and technical solutions. The participants will also be given knowledge of how transport services are produced as well as how the market for these services looks like. The importance of the information technology in transport of goods will also be described. The transport policy of the state and its consequences for transport of goods is presented when it comes to economic and environmental issues.
