Specific prerequisites

ME2302/4D1113 Knowledge Formation in Technology and Natural Science.

Only for I-students.

Language of instruction

The language of instruction is specified in the course offering information in the course catalogue.

Intended learning outcomes

To present and discuss the many models of strategic management and to embed these into social and economic wholes, and further to show the connection between theory and praxis. Further still, to show the benefits of working with complex understandings of the socio-economic nexus in contemporary business practice, and the benefits of advanced theoretic understandings in developing strategy. Much of the course-work will consist of individual work with strategic cases, and a reflective practice of developing a personal approach to strategy-work.

Course contents

Mainly individual work, but also lectures to support this

Course literature

Will be announced when course is started.
