Specific prerequisites

This is a course only for students from the program OPEN at KTH who attend the program Design and Product Realization, CDEPR.

Language of instruction

The language of instruction is specified in the course offering information in the course catalogue.

Intended learning outcomes

The course aims to provide good orientation and understanding of the field of industrial design, with the intention to facilitate engineer's future cooperation with designers and procurement of design services. The course also aims to demonstrate and make available to the designer's working methods and resources.

Course contents

The course provides lectures, exercises with criticism, croquis drawing and literature studies that cultivate interest and understanding of industrial design, and which may provide insight into the artistic and intuitive thought and its application in engineering. Practical design data follow the theoretical studierna. Övningarna has centered on understanding the form and the specific skills associated with that area. This means that the exercises may be different from past experiences of studies at KTH.

Disposition

The student is given an introduction to Industrial Design and Design and Product. The course consists of lectures, seminars, workshops and joint exercises, drawing, life drawing. The result of the exercise task is assessed and reported in a joint submission and review, which is an alternative exam.
