After passing the course, the students should be able to:

- use theorems and methods on mathematical problems and communicate the mathematical argumentation in writing.

'Mathematical' refers to the part of the mathematics that is included in the course content.

Based on recommendation from KTH's coordinator for disabilities, the examiner will decide how to adapt an examination for students with documented disability.

The examiner may apply another examination format when re-examining individual students.

If the course is discontinued, students may request to be examined during the following two academic years.
